Norton Norton Antivirus Crack is a famous anti-virus software program which comes for your personal computers.

All people can use it to get the security. It's .Q: Run a command directly through command line in a programmatic way I want to run a some command line in a C# program. But, I don't know how to run the command line programmatically. For example;

public static int Main(string[] args) { return RunCommand(@"C:\Path\to\myexefile.exe -param"); }
private static int RunCommand(string exefile, string param) {
//Run the exefile & param
Where RunCommand is a function I have previously written which takes exeFile as a string & param as a string. But, I don't know how to run the command inside a function call. A: Add "using" statements for required functions Add some error handling Something like: public static int Main(string[] args) { string[] command = args.Where(a => a.StartsWith("-")).ToArray(); string exeFile = command[0]; string param = command[1]; using (var process = new Process()) { process.StartInfo = new ProcessStartInfo { UseShellExecute = false,

CreateNoWindow = true,
FileName = exeFile }; process.StartInfo.Arguments
command, 1, 6d1f23a050
