2006-06-16 23:57:44 i just bought a maxtor diamond max 9 80gb because it was on the list. it came in the mail today and the back of the drive wont go into the ethernet thing for the playstation. do i need to buy like an adapter for the hard drive to make it into where the big part on the ethernet thing for the playstaion go in or whatplease help i really want this hard drive in there.thanks update: playstation developer wiki is now hosting a compatibility list/page dedicated to freedvdboot and it seems like, at the time of this writing, most slim models are supported. just make sure to check your dvd drive version (boot the console with no disc inserted and press triangle) and then download the appropriate.iso file from ctruts github repository. #382 - posted by (24.50.19*.)

My friend's brother put in a SEGA game on his Black before the system came out. I remember him playing it everytime he got it hooked to a TV. Does anyone know how to get the games on a black or play it on one? Thanks #24 - posted by No name (64.94.89*.* ) 2004-05-14 15:55:23 I have a 52" CRT and I was wondering if I can get SEGA games to play on it. I have a PS2 but I have no CD or HD-Loader.
